

Red Feather Campaign Gets Under Way in Lemon Grove

Committee is Named to Direct Work

The Red Feather Campaign to raise money for the Community Chest will get under way in Lemon Grove next Monday.

A luncheon meeting of representatives of various local organizations was held at the Lemon Grove School cafeteria last Friday noon, at which time Russell J. Kliegel of the Community Chest organization gave a short talk on the work of the Chest.

Byron J. Netzel was elected chairman of the drive, with Rev. Dan Apra and G. R. Graham as his assistants.

Immediately following the luncheon, Mr. Netzel and his assistants went into session and divided Lemon Grove up into areas, and assigned each area to the different organizations.

All literature for the drive has been delivered to the Review office where it is being picked up by the leaders of each area, for distribution to the workers.

No definite goal has been set for Lemon Grove this year. Local organizations such as the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire Girls and those affiliated with the YMCA participate in the funds raised by the drive. A total of 40 organizations are the beneficiaries, many of which affect the people of Lemon Grove in some way.

The purpose of the Community Chest drive is to consolidate all solicitations of funds at one time. The Chest is not an organization of the type of the 40 organizations in the campaign, but

Money Earmarked for Highway 94

State road funds in the amount of $30,000 have been earmarked for the next year for the improvement of Highway 94, it was learned when members of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce's Highway Committee met with officers of the Highway 94 Club; E. E. Wallace, State Highway Engineer, and C. T. Leigh, member of the State Highway Commission.

The Highway 94 Club, represented by its secretary, Henry C. Wood; Ralph Cloyd, Assemblyman for the 60th District; and Mark Money, agreed to draft a priority plan for other construction beyond the sum already budgeted.

Chester Dorman, chairman of the Highway Committee, pointed out that the necessity for these improvements was demonstrated during the forest fires this year which blocked off U. S. Highway 80, and made 94 between San Diego and Campo the only access to the east.

Hi, Neighbor

by Mac Rex Graham

The Community Chest drive opens in Lemon Grove Monday.

Do you remember when we had drives for the Boy Scouts, another for the Girl Scouts, and Campfire Girls, and many other organizations which none of us would want to see disbanded.

Besides the aforementioned groups, another of great consideration here is the YMCA. Its program for youth is indispensable.

Do you know that the San Diego County YMCA will not only let groups of boys use its gym for basketball or other supervised games, but lets the boys use the swimming pool, after the games, for the sum of 5c each. Besides that, they will send their truck for these youngsters and return them to their homes again.

These may not be our children, but in them you'll find the best investment in the world.

They are our leaders of tomorrow. If they are trained physically as well as mentally and morally, we don't need to worry about America's future.

Another great organization to benefit by your giving is the Salvation Army.

For a mere fraction of the cost, the Salvation Army Store on Main street makes it possible for many of our school children to have clothing and shoes which their parents could not otherwise provide.

Many adults are helped, too, in more ways than one, chief of which is that they pay for what they get, even though the price is small.

When the volunteer Chest worker calls on you next week, try to give something. It is not what we give, but what we share, that makes for happiness.

Mr. De Long Tells of Philharmonic

Perry De Long, president of the San Diego Philharmonic Orchestra, will speak on "The San Diego Philharmonic Society and its Plans for the Winter Season," at the program meeting of the Forward Club tomorrow (Friday) afternoon.

Mr. De Long is manager of the Ferguson Insurance Co. with offices in the Rella Building at 7852 Broadway.

Lemon Grove School Hallowe'en Carnival Tuesday

The annual PTA Hallowe'en carnival will be held at the Lemon Grove school grounds, Tuesday beginning at 5:30 p. m.

All kinds of entertainment will be offered the people of the community. There will be amusement booths, refreshment stands featuring hot dogs, Mexican food, soft drinks and rides for the kiddies. A merry-go-round will be set up for the boys and girls.

The school band under the direction of Paul Cheatham will lead the grand march beginning the parade of costumed figures. There will be prizes for everyone in costume, and grand prizes for different kinds of costumes. Children will be judged according to age groups.

Merchants of Lemon Grove are urged to donate generously to the Carnival, making it possible for the sponsors to stage another successful event for the schools. Funds raised by this carnival are used by the PTA for projects and materials for the school.

Mrs. T. A. Keeton and S. K. Solleder, co-chairmen, will welcome any assistance which is offered. Help is needed at the school on Saturday and Sunday afternoons for the building of booths and stands.

Please call H6-6951 or H6-9470, and let the chairman know how you plan to help make this our greatest Hallowe'en carnival.

Public Can Help in Law Enforcement

Justice of the Peace Jean Ratelle of the Homeland Township Justice Court and Deputy Sheriff Willard A. Rigley, attached to his court, are doing a good job in keeping law violations to a minimum in this area.

However, Deputy Rigley is handicapped in enforcement of the law in many instances in that he is not permitted by law to make an arrest for misdemeanors unless committed in his presence, or he has a warrant signed by a complainant and issued by the court.

Every citizen is a policeman, and to do his full duty he should not hesitate to sign a complaint when he sees a law violation.

It is up to the general public as to just how much law enforcement we have. The police force is so small that it cannot be everywhere at once. But there is always someone around who can report the offense to the judge.

Judge Ratelle says he does not want to be too harsh on first offenders, and maybe the offense on a warrant a warning, but repeated offenses will bring down the strong arm of the law.

Judge Ratelle and Deputy Rigley suggest that citizens form groups for the purpose of acting as vigilantes for the benefit of law enforcement and clean government.

Student Loan Fund Set Up at Hi School

Something new has been added to the Grossmont Union High School curriculum. It is the new "Students Loan Fund," which will benefit Grossmont students greatly.

The funds have been appropriated by the Parent-Teachers Association of Grossmont, and they are to be used solely for emergencies. The sum of $50.00 is ready for use now.

In case of a student forgetting money for lunch or transportation fare, he may borrow the necessary funds from the "Student Loan Fund" with a promise to repay it within a stipulated time.

A report will be made to the Parent-Teachers Association at the end of the school year on the progress of this fund.

John Blaine is foreman of the job at the station, and volunteers are asked to get in touch with him.

Local Traveler Describes the Beauties of Brisbane

Dear Folks: My headquarters while in Australia is at Brisbane the capital of Queensland. It is a beautiful city built at the mouth of Brisbane River. The river flows through the center of the city. Climate is much like San Diego, but a little warmer and more humid. At Brisbane Island a royal welcome. My cousin is in charge of the health department of the Ford Motor Co. She took a vacation and showed me around the city. We visited the park where the Koala bears are kept. They are lovely little animals with the softest fur. They took my picture holding one of the bears.

I presented the University of Brisbane with minerals and a tray of tourmaline from San Diego County. Had tea with the geology professor. They gave me much valuable information in regard to Australian minerals. I am scheduled to speak to the Gemology class at the University, October 16.

Here at Rubysvale I am on the frontier in Queensland. It is in the torrid zone so the weather is hot and oppressive in spite of the rains. For the last three days I have been mining sapphires. This afternoon I found a very fine one worth about $20. It will cut two nice gem stones.

The woods here are alive with beautiful parrots, pigeons with long knots, that do a very dainty dance with a outspread tail. Then there the Kookaburra, a bird which congregates into flocks and laughs three times a day, morning, noon and night. The crabs and kangaroos are plentiful. Here the houses are on stilts, have no screens in spite of the millions of insects. Each bed is covered with a mosquito netting canopy. There is no electricity. Sincerely, Harold C. B. Baker.

An amateur hour program will be held at 8 o'clock in which adults and children with talent are invited to participate. Mrs. R. R. Reinke, director, will be happy to direct anyone wishing to enter the contests.

Parents may leave their young children at the Kiddie Korral, under competent supervision and care, so as to be able to take the rest of the family to other features of the carnival, such as the dance, movies or various booths.

The booths and their chairmen are—Fish pond, Girl Scouts; tacos, hamburgers and hot dogs, Mrs. Robert Brown; plants, Mrs. Lyle Jones; punch, Everett Ninyon; coffee, Mrs. E. F. ## Political Parade

CLEM WHITAKER, Jr.

How much money does it take to make a bureaucracy tick? When you total the cost for you getting anything for your money?

With Federal Bureaucracy perhaps more entrenched in the housing field than any other, that realm offers some answers at eye-popping significance.

First off the 1949 Federal Public Housing Bill gave the green light for Housing authorities throughout the Nation to get underway on a program of 810,000 units of public housing. The cost has been kicked around a bit, but President Truman states that the Federal Government contemplates spending about 12 billion dollars for the 810,000 units.

Taking Mr. Truman's $12 billion cost figure, a little bit of arithmetic develops some amazing statistics. For instance if you accept the round figure of $10,000 as the average construction cost of a low-priced home, you find that for the same amount of money spent the Federal Government could completely socialize its housing program and give away more homes than the number of rental units it is building.

To be specific: For $12 billion, the Federal Government could afford to build and give away 1,200,000 homes costing $10,000. Instead, the Federal Government is building 810,000 rental units costing $12 billion.

Apparently the difference is needed to run the public housing bureaucracy.

It doesn't make sense? That's just the beginning of the story. That $12 billion the Federal Government is taking from taxpayers to build 810,000 rental units isn't the only cost involved.

According to the Federal Government's own figures, city and county taxpayers (in addition to their share of Federal Taxes) must ante up in the form of higher local taxes 50 percent of the Federal subsidy for all projects in their city and county.

To reduce that to the realm of dollars and cents (something the Housing bureaucrats are loathe to do): California's "share" of the Federal public housing program is $1,000 units. Those $1,000 units will cost local taxpayers of California cities and towns (again, in addition to their share of the Federal cost) a minimum of $345,303,000—a maximum of $616,962,800.

At this date, the people have absolutely no vote on whether or not they wish to incur that indebtedness—either Statewide or locally. On November 7, in California, the people will be able to go to the polls and decide whether or not they want to incur that indebtedness in the future. By the passage of Proposition 10 on the ballot, the people will give themselves the right to decide whether they want to pay for public housing or not.

Life is a grindstone and whether it grinds a man down or polishes him up depends on the stuff he's made of.

If a man does not know to what port he is steering, no wind is favorable to him—Seneca.

Sparks

FROM THE NEWS CIRCUIT
JAMES DORAIS

In the long history of the Initiative process in California, there have been many shrewd attempts by promoters and special interest groups to sell the voters some mighty shiny but worm-eaten apples.

But probably no cuter measure ever has been devised than this year's Proposition No. 1, which would outlaw the collection of personal property taxes.

The average householder, promoters of Proposition No. 1 apparently reason, would be enchanted with the idea of getting rid of the "nuisance" tax on household furnishings. He wouldn't find out, they hoped, that personal property taxes amount to nearly a quarter of all State and local revenues collected in California, and that the bulk of the collections come, not from nominal assessments on furniture, but from business inventories.

Eastern manufacturers and certain business groups own little or no real estate in California, but do have large inventories of equipment, parts and goods. These groups would benefit greatly by removal of personal property taxes. Fortunately, civic groups, tax officials, and organizations of all kinds have been quick to realize that Proposition No. 1 is simply a scheme on the part of a few to shift their share of the cost of local and State government to the general public.

Tax revenue lost under Proposition No. 1 would have to be made up by other sources—taxes, higher sales taxes, or local income taxes.

If personal property taxes were shifted to real property taxes, it is quite simple to determine what it would cost the home owner to "save" the amount he now pays in taxes on his furniture.

In San Francisco, a home assessed at $4000 is now subject to a yearly tax of $251.60. If the furniture in the home is assessed at $250, the owner pays a personal property tax of $9.44, making a total tax of $261.04.

The San Francisco Assessor's Office has revealed that if Proposition No. 1 passes, and taxes on real property are increased to make up this loss in personal property collections, this same homeowner would pay a total real estate tax of $336.80. Thus, to save $9.44, it would cost him $75.76 more!

Most cities and towns throughout the State are alerted to the threat posed by Proposition No. 1. Visalia, for example, has already voted a standby sales tax increase to become effective should the voters approve Proposition No. 1.

But California voters have been confronted with ballot gold bricks before. Having just had their Federal income taxes sharply raised, it hardly seems likely that they will fall for a scheme that would needlessly increase their local taxes.

Democrats Revolt Against Jimmy

Challenging James Roosevelt's qualifications, more than 100 prominent Southern California Democrats today declared that they could not support him in his campaign to be governor of California.

Outstanding among those issuing the statement are such well-known Democratic names as: James L. Beebe, attorney; Thomas A. J. Dockweiler, attorney; G. E. Arbogast, president of Newberry Electric Co.; Y. Frank Freeman, motion picture executive; Dean Arlen Johnson, head of the school of social work at the University of Southern California; Dr. Raymond McKelvey, professor of political science at Occidental College; Bert Rawlins, realtor; Kenneth Holland, Beverly Hills attorney; Dr. Floyd L. Ruch of the psychology department at USC; Jane C. Humphreys, long-time secretary to the late Isador Dockweiler; and Vernon Spencer, Inglewood attorney.

The statement read: "We deeply regret that James Roosevelt's own actions have made it impossible for anyone who believes in good government to support his candidacy for governor of California.

"The Korean situation has served to point up, as nothing else could, the danger in allowing Mr. Roosevelt and his political proteges to take over the machinery of state government.

"We do not wish to alarm our citizens, but it is a fact that the state of California presents an open face to the Pacific. In times of such crisis, it is vital that we retain a sound, intelligent and stable state administration, alert to danger, able to act swiftly and wisely.

"Nothing in Mr. Roosevelt's background qualifies him for so important a position as governor of California. Furthermore, his most recent actions and statements show clearly that he has in no way prepared himself for the responsibilities of the office.

"His high-handed 'railroading' of certain individuals into positions of power in Democratic state and county committees has indicated his preference for associating himself with extremists and political opportunists.

"The statement referred to the recent division among Democrats occasioned by the election of Richard Richards as chairman of the Los Angeles County Central Committee and Glen Anderson to head the Democratic state committee.

"As life-long Democrats, we feel it would be a violation of our duty to the Democratic party to support such a 'misrepresentative' of the party.

"We feel that Mr. Roosevelt's record of irresponsibility and broken political promises make it impossible to trust him to carry out any of the pledges he has made or may make in his campaign.

"We feel that the welfare and security of the people of California would be endangered if a politically immature and an opportunistic individual should be elected governor in a time of crisis such as the world now faces.

"A man cannot be blamed for making mistakes since no human being can be right all the time. However, we do not feel that a man who has been consistently wrong in his political judgment should be elected to high office when we have a choice between him and another candidate who has been consistently effective in that office for the past eight years.

"Under these circumstances, and because we believe we can best serve the Democratic party by so doing, we urge all Democratic voters to support Governor Earl Warren on November 7."

Strange Spectacles

By Richard H. Wilkinson

ON THE MORNING OF Aug. 4th, Sandra Hunter glanced through her bedroom window and saw a strange spectacle. Between the great white house and the street was a wide expanse of lawn and this lawn was at present occupied by a young man pushing a lawn mower.

Sandra didn't know what to make of it. She remembered that her mother and father were away for the weekend and that the servants were in the rear of the house.

By the time she had dressed and ventured outdoors, the young man had finished his mowing and was resting in the shade of the veranda.

"Will you kindly explain what this is all about?" said Sandra.

"I just mowed your lawn as it should be mowed."

"Should be mowed?" Sandra puckered up her brow. "What do you mean, 'should be mowed'? Who are you? And where is Rufus, our gardener?"

"I'm Jerry Leonard. I bribed your gardener this morning to let me mow your lawn. You see, I have to drive by your house every morning on my way to work, and every morning I've noticed that Rufus cuts the lawn unevenly."

"Well of all things!"

"Besides, I've been wanting to meet you since last June."

"Meet me?"

"Yes. My mother and I moved into the old Saunders place last June and, the day after, I saw you and decided I had to meet you. I noticed your lawn and thought of the idea of bribing Rufus. It was like killing two birds with one stone." He grinned. "I knew your father and mother were going to be away."

"Why, the very idea! I—I can't believe you're serious."

Jerry Leonard scratched his head. "I was never more serious in my life. Shucks! I'm sorry if you feel that way."

"The way I look!" Sandra began to wonder how she did look.

A dozen reasons came to mind but they all seemed flat and inadequate, almost silly. She hesitated for an instant longer and then turned abruptly and strode back to the house.

Jerry Leonard watched her go and into his face there came a look of disappointment.

THROUGHOUT the day Jerry was conscious of a tormented misery. All his carefully formed plans had proved fruitless. At 5 o'clock he drove home via a route that did not take him past the Hunter estate. Leaving his coupe outside in the drive he entered the cottage by the rear door and found a note on the kitchen table, left there by his mother, which advised him that she had gone to a church supper and that if he didn't want to come too he'd find some warmed-over things in the oven.

"I've been hoping you'd speak to me for ever so long," Sandra said, "but you gave the impression of being rather high hat."

Jerry moodily ate the warmed-over things and afterward stepped outside to smoke a cigarette. He was about to ease himself comfortably onto the doorstep when he chanced to glance toward the drive. He blinked, rubbed his eyes, swayed. "What the devil?" he said.

As he approached, the girl who had been washing the automobile's wheels straightened up and stood off to survey her work. It was Sandra Hunter.

"What the deuce," said Jerry, "are you up to?"

"Oh," she said. "Hello. She gestured toward the coupe. "Dirty wheels. Been getting on my nerves for weeks."

"What—what?" said Jerry. "I've noticed you driving by every day from my bedroom window. Rest of the car looks fine, but you always seem to forget the wheels. Very annoying."

Jerry puckered up his brow. He stared at the girl very intently. His face was grave. He said, "Is that all?"

"No," said Sandra. "I've been hoping you'd speak to me for ever so long, but you gave the impression of being well, rather high hat. This seemed like a logical method to promote friendly relations," she grinned. "You see, I knew your mother was away."

CHINA PHEASANT

Without question the introduction of the "China" Pheasant (Phasianus torquatus) to America in 1881 marked a new era in the game bird life of the Pacific Northwest. Credit for this shrewd move belongs to Jude O. N. Denny of Oregon, then council general at Shanghai; and the bird is still called by many enthusiastic admirers the "Denny" Pheasant.

Unlike that of the English Sparrow, the outrageous profligate of misguided sentimentality, the importation of the bird had been most carefully considered. Judge Denny studied the facts and knew the high reputation which the bird enjoyed in its native land, both as a table bird and as an economic factor in the subjugation of insect pests. He knew, too, the necessity of drawing fire from harassed and over-hunted native birds; and he knew the hardness and adaptability and fecundity of this Chinese fowl. The experiment promised well, and was carried out therefore with great care and diligence.

The promise of these early experiments has been fulfilled in every particular, not alone in Oregon, but in Washington and British Columbia and the China Pheasants are now so thoroughly established in the economic life of the Pacific Northwest that continued prosperity and usefulness is only a matter of sensible regulation.

But similar experiments carried out in California have been, to say the least, less successful. It has been found that the Ring-necked Pheasant is subject to rather exacting requirements. The first requisite is humidity, and this found to perfection only in our Northwestern coastal countries. Elsewhere the presence of abundant water in swamps and flooded sections has measurably supplied the bird's necessities.

There are many factors which conspire to make the Mongolian Pheasant the favorite as it will be in suitable sections the dominant game bird of the West. In the first place the male bird is a vision of loveliness, gorgeous in color beyond the ability of a mere word painter to depict, occupying in this regard the same relation to other gallinaceous birds that our Wood Duck does to other water fowl.

A cock pheasant brought to bag is both dinner and a picture, a feast and a trophy.

Chiefly the China Pheasant is a good rustler. Evolved in his native land under conditions of the most strenuous competition, the Pheasant race has developed both adaptability and endurance, staying qualities which give the bird an assured position in any situation remotely similar to that afforded in China.

Under protection, Pheasants avail themselves of all the privileges, ranging freely across farms and cultivated areas, find sufficient cover in neglected fence-rows or wayside thickets, and becoming so bold as to disregard the passer-by and even to venture into farmyards to feed with the domestic fowls.

Under persecution the bird quickly develops wariness and cunning, and is able under necessity, to maintain a thrifty existence in the forests and uncultivated river valleys or in the swamps in complete independence of men. It is even able, and this is a vital point, to quickly discriminate between open and closed season and to resume the warrier life under the behest of a day's discipline.

As a game bird, also, the China Pheasant ranks high. Its flesh is above the average, and its pursuit involves all the elements of sagacity, skill and the endurance which constitute upland shooting sport. The bird lies well to a dog, that is, when cornered, but if he has a running chance the dog must win his point.

Pheasants are cunning sneaks and swift runners, and the cocks will travel at top speed for half a mile before admitting defeat and crouching for the wing test. The bird leaps into the air with a sudden cry, pauses for a fraction of a second to get his course, then away on vigorous wings.

Stubble fields and open situations are the preferred range of the Ring-necks, but they are quite at home in the jungle. They are especially to be found at the borders of clearings, where their haunting presence is likely to be resented by the pioneer who is trying to carve a garden out of a forest. Some damage they undoubtedly do, just as chickens would, but it is to be suspected that those who complain most bitterly of the "devastations" wrought by this fowl are seeking to cover for their practice all too frequent, of potting these luscious birds out of season.

Fecundity is another trait of this hardy fowl. The females raise two or three broods in a season, but not content with this, the amorous cocks seek alliance with native and domestic species.

Hybrids formed by the crossing of China Pheasants and Sooty Grouse are not infrequent, and the introduction of wild blood into the farmyards results Sun.

in interesting and not unprofitable forms.

Cock Pheasants crow somewhat after a fashion of Chanticleer, producing a sort of double explosive sound, squawk-squawk, accompanied by a vigorous clapping of the wings. They are sure to crow immediately upon hearing thunder; and once in Owens Valley, near Independence, after a particularly sharp clap of thunder I could trace the course of the aqueduct by the successive squawks of the Pheasants stationed along the course.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE

AVOCADO DEPARTMENT BEGINS FALL PROGRAM

The Avocado Growers department of the Farm Bureau will start its fall program with a meeting next Monday, at 7:30 p. m., in Escondido High School Library. According to Chairman Robert Sharp, of Vista, final plans will be made at this meeting for a growers tour of other avocado districts.

The cultural subject for the evening will be avocado root rot, the industry's number one disease problem. Recent research has shed new light on certain aspects of the disease. Growers will obtain the latest data on root rot research projects and plots. Many of the plots conducted by the University of California are located here in San Diego County.

CLEAN AND GREEN

Green, crisp and fresh looking spinach with thin leaves has more vitamin A and Vitamin C than wilted, limp spinach with the older, thicker leaves. "Buy it fresh, and hurry your spinach home to the refrigerator," recommends Home Advisor Delphine Wilson, of the University of California Agricultural Extension Service.

Good looks and good food value go hand in hand with spinach and other greens. The greener and thinner the leaves, the higher in vitamin A. Crisp, fresh spinach is likely to have more vitamin C than wilted, limp spinach. Hurry spinach to the refrigerator because cool storage helps to save the vitamin C.

Wash spinach several times in cool water before cooking. Trim away the wilted and discolored leaves. Five minutes cooking time is usually enough, and will save the green color.

Cook in only the water that clings to the leaves, or add a small amount of water for a milder flavor.

PULLEY REPLACEMENT AND CULLING MEETINGS

Poultrymen are invited to attend meetings on the subject of "Pulley replacement and its relationship to culling practices." Several county-wide meetings are planned by the Agricultural Extension Service, of the University of California. Meetings for next week will be held on Wednesday, at 7:30 p. m., at Vista High School in Vista, and Thursday, at 7:30 p. m., at the Escondido High School.

Adolph points out that a good replacement program tied to an efficient culling program is the answer to an efficient poultry management program which maintains full capacity and high egg production.

Meetings are open to the public. All poultrymen are urged to attend.

SEND THEM IN SAFETY

Accidents are three times more deadly to children than pneumonia, the most often fatal disease. Your child's safety in going back to school will depend a great deal on what he learns at home, believes Home Advisor Bena Johnson, of the University of California Agricultural Extension Service.

Teach your child that the way he handles a knife or a pair of scissors can be either useful or harmful to him. Teach him that fire can burn his hands as well as bake a cake or burn the trash.

Miss Johnson says that a child's natural craving for adventure can often lead him into dangerous places and situations. Teach your child the difference between a "good adventure," rather than smother his desire for excitement. Point out to older boys and girls the stupidity of spoiling a good time by missing it because of not knowing how to do something correctly and safely.

Young people today, more than ever before, Miss Johnson believes, should know that the world is full of new things which are either safe or unsafe, friendly or unfriendly, according to the attitude taken toward them. Automobiles, gasoline, electricity and fire are all here to stay. Teach your child to live with them.

SALUTE TO 4-H CLUBS

Congratulations on your achievements, California 4-H Clubs! You have changed enormously in a few short years. You have grown in numbers, in stature, in wisdom, and in the scope of your activities.

Most of the credit goes directly to you boys and girls. You and the two million like you throughout the United States, have worked hard to make country life more productive and satisfying. You have learned the value of hard work through your projects in livestock, field crops and homemaking. You have learned citizenship through actually living and working with your neighbors. You have learned to accept responsibility and leadership through acting as officers of your club.

Your leaders deserve credit, too. They are busy farm men and women, most of them with families of their own, but they always seem to find some extra time to help.

Your parents are to be complimented, too, for without their backing, 4-H Club work could not survive.

We are now in our second generation of 4-H Club members in California. Our club members of yesterday are our rural leaders of today. You may look at them with pride, and remember some of you will be in their shoes tomorrow.

KITCHENS CAN BE FIRE TRAPS

Women who go "like a house afire" in the kitchen all day long, should not take the expression literally, warns Home Advisor Bena Johnson. There are probably more fire hazards in a kitchen than in any other room, if only because it is used the most.

Inspect often the gas pilot lights near the doors. A draught may blow them out. Ask the utility company to look for gas leaks in your stove and adjust the burners at frequent intervals. Keep the stove clean, free of grease, and clean it with a cleaner that will not burn.

If the stove is near a window, use flame-resistant curtains if possible, and tie them back so that they cannot blow into a stove flame. Hang towels away from the flame, too.

Keep the matches where small children cannot reach them. Use only approved electrical equipment in the kitchen. See that electrical cords have a label showing they have been tested for safety.

Leave the door open for a few minutes before turning on the gas and lighting a gas oven or broiler. Even then, stand to one side in case any leaking gas should explode, and the "house afire" become a reality.

RESEEDING BURNED BRUSHLANDS

Removal of dense brush by fire has presented an excellent opportunity to many cattlemen to improve their ranges, states Fred W. Dorman, Farm Advisor.

Paper management of these areas can convert at least some of the range to open grassland.

Dorman urges a four point program in handling these ranges:

1. On good soils that can be safely tilled—farm them. Else, a grain pasture—follow rotation until the brush is permanently cleared.

2. Where the soil is good and livestock can be controlled, but the land can't be farmed, plant perennial pasture plants. After broadcasting seed, use a sheep-foot roller or brush drag.

3. On fair soils, or where a livestock can't be controlled—seed annuals.

4. If there was a good grass cover before the fire and on poor soils—plant nothing. The natives will probably grow better than anything that could be seeded.

It is suggested by Dorman that grazing be deferred on any planting of perennials until after they have set seed. A good stand of annuals or natives will set seed in spite of heavy pasturing. Utilizing the browse from new brush sprouts will assist in keeping brushlands open to grazing longer.

GET "REDDY" AND GROW!

More than 3,800 miles of poles and wires stretch through my service territory. Some carry as high as 115,000 volts others 69,000, 12,000, 4,000, 2,300 to a low of 120 volts.

This is Otay substation. You'll find 35 of these located at strategic points throughout my service area.

Here's another Reddy Kilowatt symbol... the transformer that alters voltage to serve various needs.

Hello, there!

I'm Reddy Kilowatt... symbol of Reddy Kilowatt power... the electricity you use every day.

I'm like the rain.

Or the sun.

I'm one of the elements of growth - for when I come to an area, it starts to develop.

Consider my territory, for instance. Today, it is one of the most rapidly growing areas in the whole country.

Across its miles, spread millions of dollars worth of equipment - poles, lines, sub-stations, transformers... all invested to bring Reddy Kilowatt Power to industry, home, community and ranch - as it is needed.

And, today, I bring you Reddy Kilowatt Power at rates that are the lowest in my history. My average rate for residential service has actually declined since World War II.

Next time you travel my territory, look for my symbols and remember me... Reddy Kilowatt... your servant of the century - I go hand in hand with modern growth.

VISTA LA MESA

The Junior American Red Cross has made a good start toward project work for the year. With Mrs. Iris Ritchie, two student representatives, Leah Conlee and Sharon Evers, attended a district meeting of Junior Red Cross workers in El Cajon, Wednesday afternoon of last week. The students have outlined plans formulated at this meeting to the student body, and each room will play an important part in the program for the year.

Mrs. Jessie Snell attended the Tenth Leaders conference, Camp Seeley on September 29, 30 and 31 as an alternate for Mrs. Hazel Schwalm, president of the Lemon Grove Teachers Association. She will report to the conference of teachers and administrators at the next meeting. As a member of the Curriculum Planning committee for San Diego County, Mrs. Snell attended the October meeting at the County Schools Service Center last Wednesday.

Mrs. Snell's morning second grade is studying about "Our Community." The children have made a large mural showing Mt. Helix and S. Mountain in the background. Buildings of the community helpers, the fire station, post office, stores, dairy, etc. are being placed in the foreground. These pictures illustrate to the children how these workers help us to live in our communities.

Mrs. Harold Bridges and Mrs. Francis O'Connor, room mothers for this second grade class, served coffee to mothers of the children last week.

In the first grade, Mrs. Hunt's pupils have brought their study of nature into the classroom in the form of a giant moth, which Vari Loche brought to school, and a kitten belonging to Judy Richardson.

The kindergarten was sorry to lose Terry Loyser, who is moving to Florida, where his father has been transferred. Terry presented a little washing machine to the class. A welcome to Carol Weeks, who recently moved here from Chula Vista.

Mrs. Emma Tait's third grade group, in studying sea life, is enjoying learning about star fish, the hermit crabs, known as the clowns of the sea, and the octopus, which defends itself by means of a dark fluid.

Mrs. Cornelius' 4th-5th grade class has been writing stories and poems. New words and phrases were used by the students in attempts at originality in writing. All compositions were read and nine selected by the class were typed and displayed on the bulletin board and sent to the Vista La Mesa News, our school publication. Contributors were Peter Danielson, Gary Harrington, Andrea McFarland, John Taylor, Daniel Dawson, Owen Beckham, Chris Avery, Shirley Steigerwald and Allan Rovang.

Through the courtesy of John van Gilse, in recognition of the services rendered the entire community by their work, the following members of the School Safety Patrol will be privileged to see the matinee at the Grove Theatre on Saturday: Willard Rigley, Roger Slagill, Charles Edmfield, Bobby Coy, Gary Utt, Barney Tumey, Bill Cobral, Joe Cota, David Hodge, Robert Ellis Keith Hall and Warren Hagen.

Shirley Quist and Ronnie Svalstad, students in the 7-1 class of junior high, have been selected by their classmates as music representatives to meet with Mrs. Ada Krinsky, music teacher, to help plan the listening and singing program for 7th grade pupils.

The Student Council members of the School met with Mr. Grossman, faculty advisor, on Wednesday and discussed possible plans to improve the school life for every child. It was decided that an immediate problem is one dealing with the lunchroom. At the next meeting, each member will present his ideas, and some action will be taken toward improvement of the problem.

Vista La Mesa PTA

Burton Tiffany, curriculum coordinator for San Diego County Schools, will speak on "Understanding Parents," at the Vista La Mesa PTA meeting next Thursday evening at 7:45 in the kindergarten room.

Mothers Singers will give several numbers and hostesses will be fourth grade room mothers, Mrs. Richard Wells, chairman. Child care will be provided.

Attend Junior Red Cross Meeting

Student representatives and faculty sponsors from the Lemon Grove School District met last Wednesday afternoon with other schools at Cuyamaca School in El Cajon for the first fall district meeting of the Junior Red Cross. They were addressed by Mr. Alcar, the elementary guidance chairman for both city and county schools Junior Red Cross groups. He commended county schools on the excellent job done in past years, and outlined plans for student projects for the 1950-51 term.

Miss Lavancha Bauman, Lemon Grove District sponsor, was elected chairman for the Grossmont district for Red Cross activities.

Wanda Turner, Junior High school delegate of Lemon Grove, was elected by the District student representatives to serve this year as delegate from the Grossmont district at all County meetings. She will attend a large gathering Saturday at Red Cross Headquarters in Balboa Park, San Diego.

Others attending the El Cajon meeting included Mrs. Margaret L. Darroch, junior high sponsor; Louis Paluzzi, Monterey Heights sponsor; Gloria Castellanos, 5th grade representative from Lemon Grove School Mrs. Iris Ritchie, Vista La Mesa sponsor; with Sharon Ewers and Leah Conlee, students. Schools also attending the affair included La Mesa, Lakeside, El Cajon, Santee and Jamul.

St. John of the Cross School News

The quick action of five boys at St. John of the Cross School probably saved much damage when they put out a grass fire which burned over a large area of an adjoining field recently.

Using burlap sacks, Louis Wagner, Tom Wallace, Ted Mangano, Leo Disheim and Douglas Bwy beat out the fire which had probably started from carelessness.

St. John's foot ball team tied the Guadalupe team with a 7 to 7 score in a most exciting game at Golden Hills last Saturday afternoon.

Several Guadalupe players suffered injuries. The biggest gains were made by intercepted passes by both teams.

St. John's score was made when fullback Louis Wagner intercepted a long pass and ran 65 yards for a touchdown.

Games to be played at Golden Hill Saturday will be Guadalupe vs. Our Lady of the Angels at 12:30 p. m. and St. John's vs. St. Jude's at 2 p. m.

The Parents Guild is having a membership drive which closes November 16. The grade getting the largest percentage of members will receive a prize.

Two movies, "The Gospel Story" and "The Return of Rintintin," full length films, will be shown in the school auditorium Friday at 8:15 p. m. The public is invited.

New Policy for Calling Reservists

Future recalls of inactive and organized Naval Reservists will be on an equal basis, was announced in Washington Tuesday by the Chief of Naval Personnel.

The new policy, which removes the "priority" tag on organized reservists, is designed to strengthen the Organized Reserve, whose backlog of trained personnel already has been depleted by the current mobilization program, and to maintain the organized units for future events.

Under a new directive, Naval Reserve personnel either transferred to or enlisting in an organized status after October 15, will be subject to recall only to the same degree as inactive Naval Reservists possessing the same qualifications.

This procedure will be followed by the Bureau of Naval Personnel and the Chief of Naval Air Reserve Training in the case of officers and by the Naval Districts in the recall of enlisted men.

Naval Reservists whose employment or dependency status indicates probable delay of 60 days or more in event of recall will not be transferred to the Organized Reserve.

Mary Elizabeth Fielder and Robert Wilson Wed

Miss Mary Elizabeth Fielder, lovely daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Joseph T. Fielder, 3750 Gigliotti avenue, became the bride of Mr. Robert C. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Wilson, of San Diego, on Saturday evening. The rites were read by the Rev. Edward B. Cole at 8 o'clock in the North Park Baptist Church in the presence of 250 guests.

The candle-lighted sanctuary was decorated with baskets of Fall blossoms and palms. Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Margaret Durham sang, "I Love You," and DeGraft Stanley sang "O Promise Me;" and concluding the marriage prayer, sang "The Lord's Prayer." Mrs. Grant Prescott played the nuptial music on the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a gown of white satin with long train. A crown of Chantilly lace embellished with pearls held her fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of white spider and pom-pom chrysanthemums, centered with an orchid corsage.

As matron of honor, the bride's sister, Mrs. Ernest R. Schneider, wore a gown of rust taffeta and carried light green chrysanthemums.

The bridesmaid Mrs. Richard B. Johnson, wore a similar gown of green taffeta and carried bronze chrysanthemums.

Edwina and Donna Fielder, nieces of the bride, were flower girls, wearing frocks of gold taffeta. They carried green parasols filled with rose petals.

Leo Tuck served as best man and Roy Duley, James Boyd and Eugene Pasikitt ushered.

A reception for 75 guests was held in the bride's home, at which Mrs. Fielder wore teal blue crepe, with matching hat and pink begonia corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of royal blue crepe with black accessories.

The bride received her education in Texas, being a graduate of Baylor University. Mr. Wilson attended Pepperdine College and is employed in the Bank of America in Linda Vista.

Upon their return from a trip to the northern part of the State, the happy couple will be at home at 720 W. Washington, El Cajon.

Ineptness With an Equalizer
Even Found Among Gangsters

By BILLY ROSE

Because I sometimes tote around more than two dollars, and because my house has demonstrated a tendency to get burgled, I have a license to carry a revolver—and sometimes I do.

But I certainly hope I never get into a spot where I have to use it, because I doubt whether I could hit the back wall of a brewery if I were 20 feet away.

And it isn't because I haven't practiced a plenty. There's a makeshift pistol range back of my house up at Mt. Kisco, and over the years I guess I've used up enough ammunition to keep a small Balkan war going. But no matter how carefully I sight and squeeze the baby gun with the short nose, I've never been able to do much more to the bulls-eye than glare at it. And two will get you 20 that most of the Dead-eye Dicks you read about can't do much better.

The U. S. Army evidently agrees with me about the difficulty in handling this tricky bit of mechanism effectively. Next time you see newsmen's closeups of the kids who are doing the fighting in Korea, look closely and you'll see they're armed with rifles—Garands and Brownings and automatics—but about the only place you'll see a six-gun will be in the holster of a two-star general.

Billy Rose

I FIRST LEARNED that expert shooting with a revolver is more bull than bulls-eye when I moseyed down to Ft. Worth 14 years ago to stage that city's centennial exposition. One of the whoopey-does I put on, "The Last Frontier," was a wild west show, and the cast included the best boss hands in the business—Galashads in 10-gallon hats who had won prize money in every rodeo from Pendleton to Madison Square Garden. Naturally, I wanted to include an exhibition of pistol shooting, and as a charter member of the Zane Grey club I figured that almost any one of my bronco busters could pop a clay pipe out of a girl's mouth at 30 feet.

Well, I figured wrong. There was no one in the cast who could hit the pipe without taking the mouth with it, and I wound up having to import the national pistol champion—a skinny kid from Brooklyn who had learned marksmanship in a Coney Island shooting gallery.

Attend Hi-Y Day
at Hollywood

Vista La Mesa Hi-Y club members, accompanied by advisor, Gregory Boddy and Rev. Russell Hensley, attended Y Day in Hollywood last Saturday.

Over 10,000 YMCA people saw a parade of movie and screen talent at an Art Linkletter show at Hollywood Bowl, Dennis Day, Alan Young, Edgar Bergen, Charlie McCarthy, Walter O'Keefe, Peggy Lee and others participated. Tom Harmon, former Michigan football star, kicked several pigskins into the stands. A box lunch was served and all went to the Los Angeles Coliseum to witness the Stanford-UCLA game.

The club is sponsored by the Vista La Mesa Christian Church and is one of nine clubs in the Grossmont High School YMCA Clubs Council.

corps-to-be figured to be more than a few feet away, the killers used sawed-off shotguns with a three-foot spread, or tommyguns which produced a spray like a garden hose.

A few years back, an ex-bootlegger—now vice president of a national whiskey company—told me a story about Al Capone which illustrates my point. It seems Al was tipped off that one of his body guards was playing footsie with a rival gang, so he threw a banquet for 200 of his hired help, and after the feast made some complimentary remarks about the double crosser and asked him to set up on the table and take a bow. As the guest of honor was bowing, the 200 hoodlums reached for their rods and let him have it. But when Capone—always the good bookkeeper—counted the bullet holes, he found only 20 in the carcass—100 of the trig ger men had missed.

YEARS AGO, I used to haunt the 42nd street shooting galleries, and got so handy with a .22 rifle that I could knock the dancing celluloid ball off the stream of water five times out of ten. And I was plenty cocky about my marksmanship until one day when I went up to see Ben Hecht at his place in Nyack.

Hecht, fed up with my big talk about small arms, suggested I shoot it out with Charlie Lederer, the screen writer, who was spending the weekend with him.

"I've got nothing against Lederer," I said modestly. "Let him live."

"The target will be a tomato can at 10 feet," said Ben, "and you and Charlie can take turns with my .22 automatic pistol."

We went out on the lawn and Lederer, sighting carefully, hit the can two out of three times. I didn't even nick it.

Last month while vacationing in Hollywood, I lunched with Hecht and reminded him of the debacle which ended my career as a marksman.

"I might as well have been shooting blanks," I said.

"As a matter of fact," grinned Ben, "you were."

SHORT STORY
Daily
Enough

By Richard H. Wilkinson

ONE DAY last spring a transcontinental air liner got off its beam over the Rocky mountains and crashed against a rocky peak. It was a few hours before the disaster was suspected, and then the airports could only guess at the location of the wreckage.

Glen Owens, sitting alone in his cabin on the slopes of White Crest valley, heard the announcement over his dry cell set. Young Glen's cabin was located on the course of the liner's flight, and earlier in the evening he had heard sounds that now he remembered as being rather queer.

Glen strapped on his skis, loaded a pack with provisions and supplies and set off up the valley. Three hours later he saw a light and came to the wreckage. Two people were dead, and another was badly injured, but that unless he had medical attention pretty quick he too would die.

On an improvised sled, Glen pulled the injured man to the nearest town and doctor.

Glen Owens not only received a reward, but he became, overnight, a figure of national reputation.

Three days after this man from Hollywood, Calif., arrived in Crest, looked up Glen and offered to pay him $300 a week to make a moving picture.

Glen smiled and shook his head. "Nope," he drawled, "I always wanted to be a legerdemainist, and now with this reward money I reckon I got my chance."

"Good gosh, man, it will take 20 weeks to make this picture. That's $10,000. Do you realize that?"

"It's a lot of money," Glen agreed, "but suppose folks liked me? Then I'd have to stay out there and keep making pictures."

"You'll be a dumbbell if you don't grab this chance."

"Maybe," said Glen good-naturedly. "I'm a dumbbell already."

"Glen! What is the matter? Last summer you wanted to start a dude ranch down in Arizona, but you didn't have any money. So you decided to go trapping for one winter so you could save enough money to buy a half-interest in a ranch and we could get married. And now you're offered $10,000 and you mumble something about being a legerdemainist. It's!"

"Legerdemainist," Glen told her patiently.

ALL of which made swell newspaper copy. The reporters ate it up. So did readers. If Glen had been famous before, he was twice as famous now.

The next week three movie producers arrived on the scene. One of them offered a flat price of $25,000 for a single picture.

Leah Conroy was almost in tears. "Glen, for goodness' sake, try and understand what this means. In another month you'll be forgotten. It's your chance. Do you want to be a trapper all your life?"

"Thirty thousand!" said the movie magnate desperately.

Glen heaved a deep sigh. "O. K. If that's the way you want it, Leah!"

So Glen Owens went to Hollywood and made a moving picture.

Glen returned to Crest, bearing his

Then he fashioned a sled, using his skis as runners, twisted some saplings into the shape of snowshoes and wove them with twigs.

$20,000, and the next day he and Leah journeyed down into Arizona. Within a week they had purchased a ranch.

They were married in the ranch parlor, and left immediately for a honeymoon to Honolulu. It was while they were on the boat that Leah asked the inevitable question.

"Well, when it was like this," Glen replied. "That offer of $10,000 was good, but we needed $15,000 to buy a ranch of our own. So I figured if I turned down the first offer folks would think I was daffy enough to make me more famous, and the movie folks would offer me more money. Which they did."

"Glen Owens, what is a leger—" "I dunno," Glen grinned. "And I figured nobody else would, either. All I know is I saw it written out once and copied it off so I'd be sure to get the spelling right in case I wanted to use it."

SHORT STORY
Harmonious
Union

By Richard H. Wilkinson

IT WAS incredible that Tony and Leah Cranston should have quarreled over so small a thing. The neighbors would have been horrified for the neighbors thought no two people were more ideally suited.

The neighbors were right, too. Tony and Leah were harmoniously united. They were deeply in love. There was perfect understanding between them.

Then one day Tony came home from work and went into the bedroom to freshen up for dinner and found two five dollar bills and some change lying on the bureau. He scooped up the money.

"Hey," he said good naturedly. "We can't afford this. I found this money lying on the bureau. It might have blown away. Don't be so forgetful!"

Leah smiled. "Oh my!" she said. "Did I leave the change from the grocer there?"

A week later Tony discovered a dollar bill where it had been idly dropped on the living room table and forgotten.

"Listen, honey, you've got to be more careful. Money is pretty important to us right now."

"I'm sorry," said Leah, "but it's only a dollar."

"We can't afford to lose a dollar or even a part of a dollar," Tony said, smiling.

The next time—the time Tony discovered three dollars on the kitchen table and one on the floor, where it had blown—he didn't smile.

"Good gosh, woman! Show a little more consideration, will you! If I hadn't noticed that dollar on the floor it would have been lost."

"Darling," she said altogether too precisely, "I've never lost a penny of our money."

"How do you know?" asked Tony, a bit smugly.

"Because," said Leah, just as smugly, "I can account for every dime you've ever given me."

"Ha!" said Tony. "Let's see you!"

So Leah got a pencil and paper and sat down and figured out her expenditures to the last penny.

"Well," said Tony, "that doesn't mean you won't lose some if you continue to be careless. After it's gone—well, you've heard the crack about locking the barn door after the horse has been stolen."

"I've heard," said Leah icily, "a lot of cracks."

SUDDENLY it occurred to Tony that this was their first major crisis. Somehow he'd have to break Leah of her habit without a quarrel.

It was the next Saturday noon when he came home from work that Tony discovered three ones and a two-dollar bill on the bureau where it had been absent dropped by Leah while she rescued the roast from burning. Furtively Tony scooped up the money and stuck it in his pants pocket. Sooner or later Leah would discover it was missing. She'd become concerned. She'd ask him to help hunt. He'd make a pretense of hunting and then pretend to find the money where it had blown into the bathroom.

That afternoon Tony went playing golf. All the while he was gone, while he was in the locker room and on the course and later in the showers, he kept thinking of Leah hunting for the missing money.

He came home an hour earlier than he had planned. The moment he saw Leah's face he knew she had discovered the loss.

"Darling, I laid some money on the bureau. Have you seen it?"

"It must have blown off," said Tony. "Boy, I hope we can find it!"

His face wore a look of grave concern as he began hunting. "We can't afford to lose a cent," he kept saying.

Tony waited until Leah looked at though she were on the point of bursting into tears, remembering she had been saving for a new hat and knowing she couldn't have it unless they found the money. Then he ambled into the bathroom, and chucking to himself, reached into his pocket.

A startled look came to his face. He reached into his other pockets. They were all empty.

SHORT STORY
Farm
Girls

By Richard H. Wilkinson

BEULAH and Candida had met in the New York office of Mortimer and Brown, attorneys. They became fast friends because they found something in common. That something was a desire to live on a farm in the country.

They talked about it incessantly. Then Beulah came through with the great idea.

"Let's work hard and save for a year. Then let's pool our resources, make a down payment on a small farm and—live there!"

"But we don't know a thing about farming. We've both lived in the city all our lives. We couldn't make it pay."

"We could," Beulah said. "If we wanted to badly enough. There are books on how to do everything these days."

So for a year the two girls worked and saved. They spent evenings on end at the library reading books on small scale farming.

When spring came they drove up into the country and called on the farmers who had offered their homes for sale. The second place they visited proved exactly what they wanted. It was a small, white, tree-shaded house with a big barn, a henhouse containing a flock of 100 birds, a cow, a horse, a pig and several cultivated acres.

It was a swell idea. Best of all, they made a profit. The enterprise would likely have developed into something lasting, had it not been for Barnaby Xerxes.

He was a radio singer, suffering from a nervous breakdown. He had come to Hillside to recuperate. Beulah met him one day on a deserted section of country road. He was walking and she gave him a lift back to town in the delivery truck.

BEULAH was thrilled. During the days that followed she hated going off evenings and leaving Candida home alone, but, obviously, Barnaby and she couldn't take the other girl everywhere with them.

Beulah was wondering how, when Barnaby proposed marriage and she accepted him, she was going to break the news to Candida.

Two nights later Beulah delivered a half dozen fowl to the village church for its semi-annual supper, and was returning home earlier than she was expected. Lights were on in the front room and through the window she saw Barnaby holding Candida in his arms, kissing her.

Beulah was furious. She stormed into the house. Candida tried to be calm and explain that she and Barnaby had loved each other all along. They hadn't had the courage to tell Beulah.

You—your vixen!" Beulah shrieked.

A week passed. The girls went about their duties without speaking

"But we don't know anything about farming," Candida said. "We've both lived in the city all our lives."

Both knew that sooner or later they would have to come to some agreement about the farm.

So in the end Beulah made arrangements with Lawyer Stearns and one evening the girls set out in the delivery truck for his law office to write the final chapter in their adventure.

They were silent on the drive to town. Even when the car lights went out for no explainable reason neither of them said anything. Silently Beulah got out, lifted the hood, discovered a fuse was blown, and having no spare, tried to produce a makeshift from a hairpin. It began to look as though there was nothing to do but continue on foot, when suddenly the connection was made and the lights flared up.

In the glare of the headlights a man and a woman, evidently having come up in the darkness without knowing of the truck's presence, were standing in close embrace.

The man was Barnaby Xerxes. Nobody said anything for a moment, then Barnaby turned and began walking wearily away. The girl followed him.

Beulah got into the truck. She started the motor. She looked at Candida. Candida looked at her.

"Oh, Beulah!" said Beulah presently. "Let's go back and milk the cow and call it a day."

"Oh, let's!" cried Candida.
